

Spiked: The Unpublished Political Cartoons of Rob Rogers

The George Washington University's Corcoran School of the Arts and Design

Media Compilation

June - July 2018

June 29, 2018

The Washington Post

Comic Riffs

Pittsburgh Post-Gazette's spiked anti-Trump cartoons will get a D.C. museum exhibit

Anti-Trump cartoons killed by Pennsylvania newspaper to be displayed in new DC exhibit

2,459 SHARES

July 2, 2018

Corcoran to display political cartoons banned from Pittsburgh newspaper

July 3, 2018

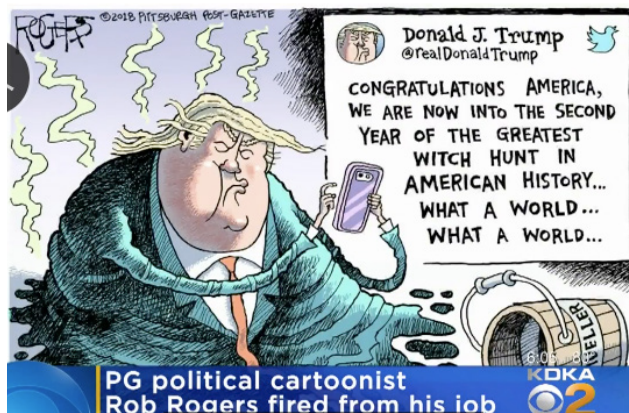

POLITICS 07/03/2018 09:35 am ET

Political Cartoonist Fired For Trump Criticism Tells His Story In Comic Form

Rob Rogers was fired from the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette last month by the paper's pro-Trump bosses.

By Marina Fang

The Washington Post

Comic Riffs • Perspective

‘Donald Trump cost me my job’: Former Post-Gazette cartoonist explains why he thinks he was fired in new comic

July 12, 2018

Fired Political Cartoonist Will Show 'Spiked' Trump Work At The Corcoran

BY RACHEL KURZIUS IN ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT ON JUL 12, 2018 2:50 PM

July 16, 2018

WASHINGTONIAN

ART Cartoonist Rob Rogers was fired from his 25-year career at the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette last month, which he claims was because of his anti-Trump drawings. The Corcoran School of the Arts & Design will show 18 political cartoons or sketches that the paper refused to publish from March to June. The exhibit, “Spiked: The Unpublished Political Cartoons of Rob Rogers,” will launch a series of conversations at the Corcoran about censorship and freedom of the press. Through October 14.

July 18, 2018

HUFFPOST

POLITICS 07/18/2018 12:57 pm ET | Updated Jul 18, 2018

Spiked Editorial Cartoons That Led To Rob Rogers' Firing Get A Public Exhibit

The works critical of Donald Trump that cost him his Pittsburgh newspaper job are featured at the Corcoran in Washington.

POLITICO

Morning Media

Your guide to the media circus

OPENING IN D.C.: "Spiked: The Unpublished Political Cartoons of Rob Rogers" at the Corcoran School of the Arts and Design. The exhibition runs through Oct. 14.

WASHINGTONIAN

NEWS

Here's How That Rob Rogers Trump-Cartoon Exhibit Happened So Quickly

The art that apparently got him fired from the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette last month is now on display.

1A, JUL 18

47:09

Editorial Cartoons: Calling It A Draw?

THE MORNING CALL

Another run for spiked P-G cartoons

Last month, Pittsburgh Post-Gazette cartoonist Rob Rogers was fired over Trump-related political cartoons that were increasingly being spiked by management.

Yesterday, 18 of those cartoons went on display as part of a new exhibit in D.C. at George Washington University's Corcoran School of the Arts and Design.

Tracie Mauriello
@pgPolitweets

The PG wouldn't publish @Rob_Rogers's work but the Corcoran Gallery made sure Washingtonians got to see them.
11:59 PM - Jul 18, 2018

2 See Tracie Mauriello's other Tweets

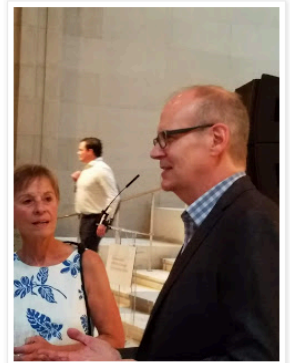

Thursday, July 19, 2018

Rob Roger's political cartoon exhibit opens at GW's Corcoran

by Mike Rhode

I was able to briefly stop by last night as Rob Rogers made a few short remarks about an exhibit of his cartoons, including 10 original pen and ink drawings and the companion colored prints critical of Trump that a Pittsburgh newspaper refused to print before they fired him. Also included are prints of sketches that they turned down before they became completed cartoons. Rogers' contentious relationship with the papers new editor has been written about extensively and soon after he was fired, GW announced they would exhibit his cartoonist directly across the street from the White House complex (information from their press release follows the images). The exhibit is sponsored by GWU and the American Association of Editorial Cartoonists. AAEC president Pat Bagley and Washington Post cartoonist Ann Telnaes contributed to the text of the exhibit.

Rob Rogers

The sold-out event drew local cartoonists Mike Jenkins, Joe Sutliff, Carolyn Belefski, Politico's Matt Wuerker, and Al Goodwyn a freelance cartoonists who appears locally in the Washington Examiner, in addition to Library of Congress curator Martha Kennedy (whose exhibit on women cartoonists is on display at the Library), and the Washington Post's Michael Cavanaugh.

GW TODAY

GW'S OFFICIAL ONLINE NEWS SOURCE

Cartoonist's Spiked Works Get Public Display

Corcoran School hosts exhibition of rejected cartoons by ex-Pittsburgh Post-Gazette cartoonist Rob Rogers.

The Washington Post

Comic Riffs • Analysis

'This exhibition should have never happened': The anti-Trump cartoons that got an artist fired go on display

mySA

'This exhibition should have never happened': The anti-Trump cartoons that got an artist fired go on display

Michael Cavanaugh, The Washington Post Published 1:46 pm CDT, Friday, July 20, 2018

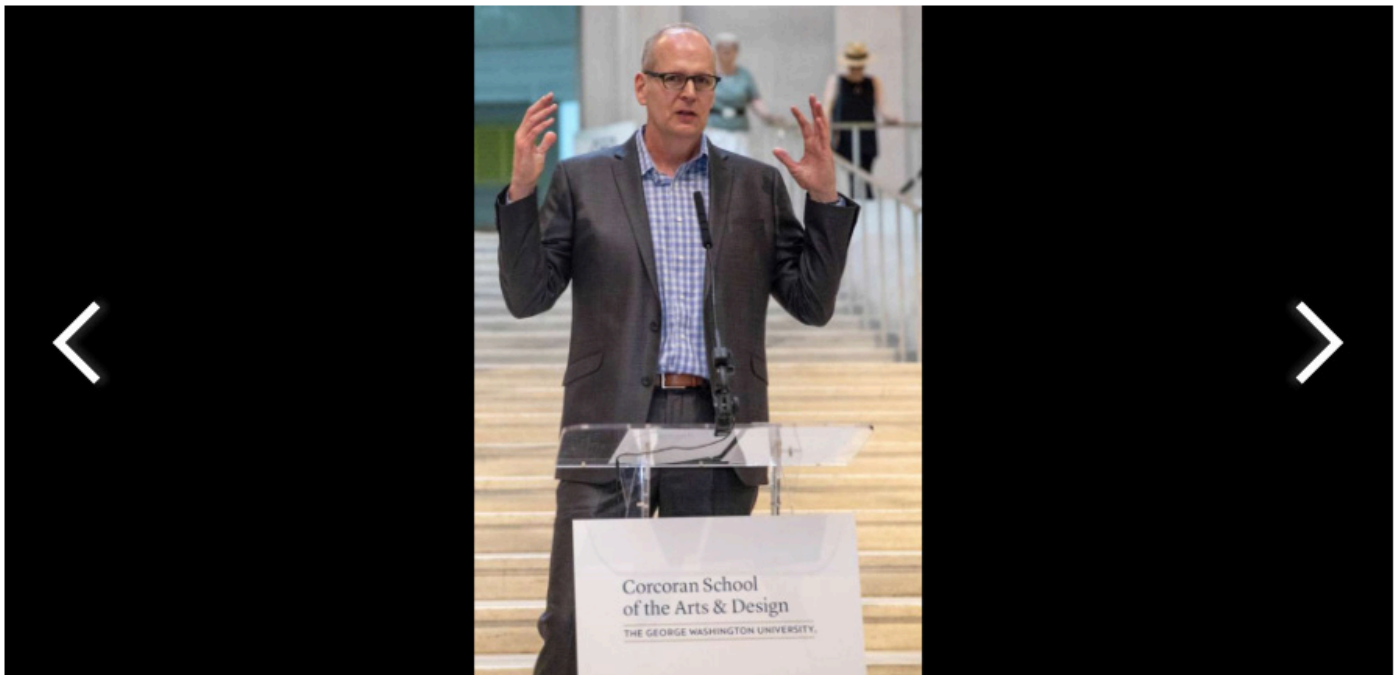

Photo: Logan Werlinger, The George Washington University

IMAGE 1 OF 5

Rob Rogers speaks at the opening of the exhibit "Spiked: The Unpublished Political Cartoons of Rob Rogers" at the Corcoran School of the Arts & Design in Washington, D.C.. Rogers was the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette ... more

ROB ROGERS
EDITORIAL CARTOONIST
PITTSBURGH, PENNSYLVANIA

NEWS / POLITICS

Cartoonist Rob Rogers fired after drawings criticising Trump

Have the US president's attacks on the media resulted in newspapers censoring themselves?

July 21, 2018

WASHINGTONIAN

washingtonianmag • Follow
Corcoran School of the Arts and Desig...

washingtonianmag Over a two-month period, cartoonist Rob Rogers' newspaper, the Pittsburgh Post Gazette, killed an unprecedented number of cartoons and ideas that were sharply critical of the Trump administration. 18 of those sketches and finished cartoons, which Rogers says cost him his job, are now on display at the @corcoran_gw. One key message, according to Sanjit Sethi, who helped put together the exhibit? "Creative expression and freedom of the press are essential to a democracy." Tap the link in our bio to or visit ➔

336 likes

2 DAYS AGO

Log in to like or comment.

July 23, 2018

NEWS & TECH

Fired cartoonist's work to be displayed in Washington

THE WASHINGTON LOBBYIST

A DC-centric blog featuring all the latest in travel, hotels, restaurants, and events.

HIGHLIGHTS from “Spiked: The Unpublished Political Cartoons of Rob Rogers”

July 23, 2018

A Talent for Exhibition, Anyway

So we took in the show at the Corcoran. We're no great fans of the 45th president ourselves, but we weren't impressed. Rogers's work strikes us as preachy, too dependent on text, and stylistically off-putting. We tend to agree with Sanjit Sethi: This exhibition should have never happened.