Museum Studies MA Course Requirements: Collections Management

Museum Studies Program Summary
The GW Museum Studies program is a 36-credit degree. Upon entering the program, every student will select a Museum Studies concentration in one of four areas of concentration:

- Museum Management
- Collections Management
- Exhibitions and Visitor Experience
- Public Engagement

All students will complete one core course entitled Museum Ethics & Values, one internship, five (5) courses as required in the selected concentration, and five (5) electives. Electives may be drawn from within Museum Studies (including a second internship) or up to four (4) courses from outside the program.

Throughout your program, you should work with your advisor to ensure that you will meet program requirements and your own career and educational goals.

Collections Management Concentration
Students learn how to protect collections and provide access through policies and procedures related to intellectual control (documentation, records management, databases, inventory, provenance) and physical care (preventive conservation practices to prevent or delay damage and degradation). Includes legal and ethical issues around access, repatriation, and acquisition. Prepares students for work as collections managers and registrars.

External Electives
Students may select a content area related to their interests and/or previous academic experience for up to four (4) of their classes. While you may select a particular department (history, anthropology), the content area specialty is not necessarily defined by a discipline. You can create your own "interdisciplinary" area and pick courses throughout GW and its consortium schools that support that subject. Some examples include American Studies, African American and diasporic studies, material culture, and nonprofit management.
