WASHINGTON, DC – Each year, an exceptional group of undergraduate students are selected as Corcoran Scholars at The George Washington University. They are chosen as incoming first-year undergraduates and join a cohort of talented arts and design students who are driven by academically robust programs that exemplify creative expression. New Favorites features never before seen work from the current cohort.

Including work by Jenna Banks, Sophia Goedert, Olivia Henderson, Lance Lokas, Amanda Mchardy, Rachel Schwartz, Maansi Srivastava, and Danielle Towers, the artists provide insight into new bodies of work. The breadth of subject matter, from Sufism and cattle ranching to self-portraiture and community gardening, underscores the urge to document and record the lives of those around us, including our own.

New Favorites* is on view from December 6 - January 28, 2022. The gallery is open to only authorized GWorld card holders. Members of the public may view the show through the gallery windows.
